—Unless there is evidence to the contrary, houses in the abadi of Shamilat go with the land, and if the land is proved to be ancestral the houses may be presumed to be ancestral property. Ind Rul (1931) Lah 994==32 P L R 603==134 I C 785.

—Where some of the proprietors sue to eject trespassers, and also challenge the title of the village proprietary body in the disputed site, a decree for possession ought not to be given to plaintiffs, as such decree will enable them to have possession to the exclusion of the village proprietary body. 1932 P C L 696 (Civ)==33 P L R 124==A L R 1932 L 603 (Civ.)

—The circumstances of a particular case may no doubt give rise to an inference that a tenant is entitled to occupy part of the village site so long as he is a cultivator in the village, or so long as he cultivates a particular holding. But it is not permissible to presume generally that the right to occupy the site of a house in the village abadi ceases when he ceases to cultivate land in the village or is ejected from a particular holding. A landlord, seeking to eject his tenant from the site of his house after his ejectment must therefore, establish that the defendant's right to the site is dependent on his right to retain the holding. 54 A 379==1912 A L J 142==13 L R 105 (Rev.)==16 R D 222

(2) Creditors, suit by [8-12].

8—In a sense a creditor's suit for administration is a suit for an account, but the analogy between it and an ordinary suit for an account is not complete. 55 M 26=A I R 1931 M 683=I R 1932 M 1=1931 M W N 916.

9—In one sense a creditor's suit for administration is a suit for the benefit of all the creditors of the estate, but the other creditors cannot be held to be represented by the plaintiff-creditor in such a suit in the sense that they are in effect parties to the suit from the outset, because if, before the preliminary decree for administration is made, the person who represents the estate of the deceased pays off the plaintiff-creditor's claim, the suit will be dismissed, although none of the other creditors has been satisfied at all: (2) a plaintiff in such a suit can have his suit dismissed, compromised, withdrawn or otherwise settled out of Court by any arrangement with those representing the estate without in any way caring for the interests of the other creditors: (3) it is open to other creditors to file suits to enforce their own claims during the pendency of the plaintiff-creditors suit and it is obligatory upon them to do so if their claims are likely to become time-barred before the preliminary order for administration is made: (5) it is open to persons representing the estate to pay off any of the other creditors even when such a suit is pending, and when they render an account in respect of the assets that have come into their hands they are entitled to be given full credit in respect of such payments. 55 M 26=I R 1932 M 1=A I R 1931 M 683=1931 M W N 916.

(4) Nature and scope of the suit (16-24)

16—Nature of administration suit explained. It is in essence a suit for accounts and application of the estate to the payment of all the creditors. Creditors other than plaintiff may come in under the decree and prove their debts. Those who do not come under the decree will be excluded and yet they will be bound by the accounts done under the authority of the court. 44 Cal. 890=21 C W N 310=24 C L J 448=38 I C 835.

(7) Who can bring the Suit [31-33]

31—The only proper plaintiff to recover the asset of the deceased person is [in default of evidence to the contrary] the legal personal representative of the deceased, and even if a beneficiary could sue in his own right, making the legal personal representative a defendant, his only claim would be an order for transfer of the asset to the legal personal representative to which claim all defences available against the legal representative would be open to the present defendants.

A foreign subject comes within the purview of all acts in force in British India, if he chooses to come into this country, unless indeed any such act especially exempts foreigners. The French law does not purport to give its subjects any privilege or immunity in foreign countries, nor would any such French law, if it existed, be of any avail in British India. There is no provision in International law nor under any convention or treaty, which protects foreigners from the law of the land, once they enter into British India. 33 C W N 1088 (1096-7)=A I R 1932 C 753

The accretion must be gradual and imperceptible When it is sudden or perceptible, the land gained belongs to the Crown. 2 M W N (1911) 261

(3) Adverse Possession and Limitation. 12-16.

12—Possession and use for 30 years of lands of another, which were washed away but had re-formed in opposite village, destroys the rights of the original owner 4 O W N 1008-106 I C 86=A I R 1927 O 519.

13—Land being submerged in rainy season every year—No title can be acquired by adverse possession.. A I R 1921 Cal 277-34 C L J 465-66 I C 923.

14—A chur which was found to be a re-formation in situ of plff's land was occupied for some years by Govt. It was then claimed by defts, as their property, and Govt. made over possession, to them. On plff's suing to recover possession, defts. pleaded limitation and to make out their plea claimed to tack on to their own occupation the period of Govt's possession.

Held, that the defts did not derive their liability to be sued "from or through" the Revenue authorities within the meaning of S. 2 (4) of the Lim. cult, until a full investigation based upon a proper survey and comparison of maps is made, to premise with any degree of certainty whether a claim would really lie on the ground of a new formation as being reformation in situ or a contiguous accretion. 56 C L J 263=A I R 1933 C 199=A L R 1933 C 58

19—The original owner retains ownership over land formed in a river which is identifiable and is identified A I R 1927 Oudh 559-105 I C 148

20—Dhardhura custom is not opposed to equity—It applies also to more violent changes of the course of a stream—Occasional hardship on one side or the other is no ground for its abrogation. A I R 1927 All 221-49 A 195-25 A L J 213-99 I C 557

21—The Wajib-ul-urz of a village recorded an agreement that occupancy tenants will have no right to land reappearing after being carried away by the stream.

Held, that the entry was inoperative, because (1) the agreement was void for want of consideration; (2) the parties to the agreement who were subject to the Customary Law in alluvion matters, were not at liberty to enter into a contract providing that they and their descendants shall not in future be subject to that rule, 4 P R Rev. 1912-8 P W R Rev. 1912-15 I C 942.

(9) Occupancy rights in accretions 25

25—Occupancy rights in accretions to non-occupancy holding arise only by 12 years' continuous cultivation of the accretion 29 I C 37.

(10) Ownership, Questions as to 26-28.

27—In India the presumption that riparian landlords are owners of river-beds is rebuttable. As regards accretions in non-tidal and non-navigable rivers, the ownership vests in riparian owners.

Submersion of land in water does not take away the owner's title, if the land is identifiable. 12 L W 371=55 I C 770.

28—Consent-decree in previous suit not inter-parties, and constructive possession of owner of submerged lands during diluvion, have no force or validity in a suit for declaration of title to chur lands. 19 C W N 565=29 I C 156.

(11) Procedure 29—30

29—Parties treating accreted lands as separate tenures can maintain a separate suit for rent of such land. 83 I C 602=A I R 1924 C 649=51 C 396

30—Suit by Govt. as proprietor claiming certain alluvial lands. It appeared that the Govt. had no title to the lands and that the right of Govt. to assess revenue upon them was declared long ago. Held having regard to the allegation of title and past conduct of the Govt. the court ought not, at this stage of the case in appeal, to change the entire form of the suit and to make a declaratory decree. 14 C L J 98=11 I C 718.

(12) Submersion and Re-formation 31-40

—A signed memorandum showing the parties thereto the subject-matter and the terms of the contract, is necessary in all contracts including auctions where the subject-matter of the contract is either land or any interest in land. Auction sales of land in India are usually Court auction sales, to which of course this rule would not apply, but by such sales a sale certificate is always granted in the Court which would take the place of the signed memorandum. In other auction sales, such as a sale by a Municipal Committee, the law as set forth above should be followed and a signed memorandum should be prepared. BENAMI TRANSACTIONS (Contd.)*(13) Proof and pre-sumption of Benami and doctrine of advancement (Contd.)

By a registered deed of gift a Mahomedan Oudh talukdar made over a portion of his property to his wife. The reason recited in the deed that he desired to provide his wife with an alternative residence at the place where the property gifted was situated was to say the least of it, understandable. The portion assigned to her contained the Zenana quarters, where she ordinarily put up when accompanying her husband, the evidence of his other gifts to her shewed that he had a great desire to provide for her future comfort on a generous scale. But during the talukdar's lifetime she exercised no individual acts of ownership, property was occupied by the servants of the estate that repairs were done at the talukdar's expense, and that no mutation of names was made in the Government records. The deed was however, handed over to the donee and remained in her possession. Held that the onus lay on those who disputed the gift.

decided by the statement of a witness that it was an arrear of revenue within the meaning of the Act. The purchase of the estate made by Collector is in contraventions of the provisions of s. 58 of the Act and cannot confer a legal title on the Govt. under the purchase. Hence a proprietor can recover the rent by the civil suit even though in the ground of appeal much an objection to the sale was not specified. Whether non service of notice under s. 7 is not a material irregularity in the conduct of the sale so as to invalidate the sale is a question open to solution. —S. 2 and 3—Revenue—Arrear of—Payment of—Last date for—Last date fixed by Board of Revenue under S. 3 if—"Poush talab".

It is contented that, as the sale was for recovery of revenue due up to the Poush (i. e. December-January) talab (demand the amount, though unpaid, was not an arrear of revenue within the meaning of S. 2 of Act XI of 1859 until the 1st February and for payment of such arrears the last date fixed by the Board of Revenue under S. 3 of the Act was the 28th March and consequently there were no arrears on 27th March, the date fixed for the sale. The papers of the collectorate distinctly show the 12th January, as the last day for the payment of the revenue, which can be nothing else than the last date contemplated by S. 3 of the Act and is not the date of the instalments, according to the settlement and kistbandi of the mahal, as contemplated in S. 2 of the Act. The expression "Poush talab" is no doubt used in the documents. It should, however, be borne in mind that, since the proprietor is quite safe, so long as he pays the revenue by the last date for payment fixed under S. 3 of the Act, the earlier date, on which it was payable under the settlement and kistbandi of the mahal, lost in course of time all its importance and was lost sight of in practice and the last date fixed for payment under S. 3 became all important. The expression "Poushtalab," used in the documents, is not the instalment for Poush according to the settlement and kistbandi of the mahal but the instalment for which the last date brance"; see S. 159 and S. 161, where incumbrance is defined. But it is not so under S. 37 of the Revenue Sales Act of 1859. This section draws a clear distinction between "incumbrances" and "under-tenures." What is intended by the expressions "under-tenures" and "under tenants" is shown by the exceptions that follow. The third exception refers to "talukdari and other similar tenures." The taluk in the present case which is an intermediate tenure is, therefore, an under-tenure within the meaning of the section and is clearly something different from an encumbrance whatever that term may be intended to include. Under S. 37 encumbrances are wiped out by the sale. In the case of under-tenures the purchaser is only entitled to avoid and annul them, and on doing so, that is upon exercising his option to annul, he can eject all under-tenants. Talukdari and other similar tenures can be annulled by the purchaser unless they fall within the provisions of the exception. The purchaser's right in respect of an under-tenure is only a right to annul. Unless and until an under-tenure is annulled it continues; the talukdar becomes the under-tenant of the purchaser and the tenants holding under him are not affected by the change of proprietorship. prior to annulment of undertenure.

Unless and until a taluk or under-tenure is annulled it continues: the talukdar becomes the under-tenant of the purchaser and the tenants holding under him are not affected by the change of proprietorship.
There is no privity of contract between them and the purchaser and the latter eject them so long as he allows the taluk to continue. The purchaser could no doubt sue for possession of the holdings joining

ACT (1 OF 1895) (Contd.)

—Sale under—Sale by purchase to third party—Subsequent cancellation of sale under—No effect on innocent stranger purchaser. 20 C W N 819=35 I C 339.

—What the purchaser at a sale under the Public Demands Recovery Act acquires is only the right, title and interest of the person named as the judgment-debtor in the certificate. If the Secretary of state intends to enforce a security, the only course is to institute a regular suit as the Act is silent on the point. 11 I C 465-16 C W N 351=14 C L J 292.

—A sale of a property held under the Act for arrears of Road Cess by issuing certificates against persons having no interest in the property is not binding on the real owner of the property. 41 I C 252.

—S 6 (2)—The original owner and not the transferee unless his name is substituted in the place of the original owner in the "engagement" who is liable to satisfy an engagement entered into by him with the secretary of state for India in Council under s. 38 of the Bengal Drainage Act. 18 C W N 944=19 C L J 610=23 I C 782.

—S 7—Claim for damages, if within the section. 22 I C 626.

—Ss 9 (2), 9 (3) and 10 (1)—That the requisition under s 9 cl. (2) was not duly signed and verified is not sufficient to vitiate the sale. But the sale is invalid if it is shown that the certificate did not comply with the forms under the Act and that the officer signed the certificate without using his discretion under s. 9 (3).

Merely entry in the order sheet that notice had been served is no proof that service was effected. 19 C W N 1159=31 I C 664.

—S. 10—Want of service of notice under s. 10 invalidates the sale. A sale against a person who had ceased to hold title to the estate or who was not the holder of the estate is invalid. 11 I C 472.

—S. 10—Sale without service of notice is nullity—Sale against a person who was not the holder of the estate is bad, 1 Pat L W 319=38 I C 483.

—S. 15—An execution Court is incompetent to try the validity of a certificate under the Public Demands Recovery Act, by the Revenue authority, as being made without jurisdiction. The special period of Limitation under s. 15 does not apply to a suit for a declaration that the certificate has not been duly made against the plaintiff. 14 C L J 83=10 I C 532.

—Ss. 15 and 32—Unless a certificate has become final, it cannot be executed and unless it is set aside, the Judgment debtor cannot get back the money realized from him in execution of the certificate. A Judgment-debtor, who merely prefers an appeal against an order passed in execution is not entitled to a fresh start of six months for a suit under S. 15. 52 I C 832.

—S. 19 Sub S (2)—S. 317 of the C P C of 1882 applies and therefore the plaintiff cannot bring a suit for a declaration that the defendant's purchase of certain lands in execution of a certificate issued under the Public Demands Recovery Act was benami on behalf of the plaintiff. 16 C W N 973=16 C L J 412=15 I C 291.

Roll as to tenant's status is not a suit under S. 104-H, but falls within the category of suits referred to in the proviso to s. 111-A and may be brought within six years. 15 C W N 896

—S. 5—The presumption under s. 5 is weakened by the fact that almost the whole of the land was at the time of the settlement under water and that the excess of the area over the statutory limit was not so great as to preclude the possibility of pliffs being raiyats. 29 Cal 707 dist. And it is rebutted by the entry in the finally published record of rights showing that the pliffs. were occupancy raiyats and from a decision also of a Civil Court to the same effect.

If the original purpose was to cultivate the lands then subsequent conduct would not alter their status.

The pattah is the repository of the intentions of both parties and less they were "ad idm" obviously there could not have been any contract at all. (1917) Pat 379-5 Pat L W 311-43 I C 941

—S. 5—Where one of two brothers executed a kabuliati, the question whether the other brother became a tenant depends on the intention and conduct of the parties. If the landlord knew at the time of kabuliati that the brothers had agreed to share the tenancy, such agreement would bind the landlord, but not otherwise. Subsequent knowledge of landlord would not amount to a novation. The presumption under S 5 is not retrospective, yet when the question is whether a tenant was or was not a raiyat the area of the land held should be taken into consideration. 1 W R 68 ref. to 16 C L J 271-17 I C 227

In cases where the origin of the tenancy is unknown, the mode of user of the land may be considered and where the terms of the grant are ambiguous, evidence of subsequent conduct of the parties may also be admissible. 14 C L J 38 and 15 C W N 896 ref.

The terms of a lease and the papers of the landlord showing that the tenancy was a raiyati one, is not conclusive against the sub-lessees.

—Ss. 5 (1), (2) & (5) & 19—s. 5 (5) is applicable to tenancies created prior to Act.

A prajagari settlement was made of land exceeding that usually held by a raiyat. Held that 'praja' means a tenant and it is presumed that lease was a tenure. Held also that language being consistent only with the interest granted subsequent conduct is inadmissible. Evidence may be given for explanation and not contradicting doubtful documents. But when the meaning is clear, the subsequent acts cannot be admitted.

Per Tennon J:—B T Act regulates relations among the agricultural community and was intended to apply to agricultural tenancies created before or after the Act.

Tenants recorded as tenure holders sued to be recorded as raiyats under S. 104. The settled rent cannot be disturbed unless the plff. shows that the entry in the record of Rights was wrong. S. 19 refers only to raiyats within S. 5 had acquired occupancy right prior to the Act. 21 C W N 505-39 I C 934

—S. 5 (1) and (2)—Tenant taking land for cultivation to let out the land to another should be regarded as a tenure-holder and not as a raiyat.

The clause is a provision of adjective law; so it applies to tenancy which existed before the Act

The clause is applied to determine the character of the tenancy of 126 bighas, although that tenancy has been sub-divided into two tenancies before the B T Act came into operation. 17 C L J 435;

The fact that some tenants of the land themselves carried on cultivation and did not collect rent from under-tenants, is not decisive as to the character of the tenancy. The real test is the purpose of the original grant. 20 C L J 140, ref.

a declaration that he is an occupancy raiyat is not a suit under S 104 H but falls within S. 111 A and may be brought within 6 years. Once the original grant is clearly shown to be raiyati by a lease unambiguous in its terms, or by other evidence where there is no written lease, the mere fact that the tenants subsequently sublet the land would not amount to alteration of the original nature of the tenancy by agreement, or there may possibly be cases where subsequent conduct may be set up as evidence of such agreement. But where no such agreement is set up and it is clearly proved that the land was originally acquired by the tenant for cultivating it himself or by hired servants or members of his family the character of the tenancy is not affected by the mere fact that the land was subsequently let out to tenants. 15 C W N 218

The word "raiyyat" is sometimes used in official documents to mean tenants in general. A "korfa tenant" is not necessarily an under-tenant of raiyyat. He is a sub-lessee whether of a talukdar or of a raiyyat.

The reservation by the Chakdars of certain portions of the land for their own cultivation did not militate against the conclusion that they were tenure-holders.

The definition of "tenure-holder" in S. 5 (1) merely formulates the pre-existing law and the insertion of the words "bringing it (the land) under cultivation by establishing tenants in it" introduced no change in the law. 9 C L R 449 diss. 1 W R 71-15 C W N 218-15 C W N 896 ref.

Etmans are tenures and therefore S. 7 applied to the enhancement.

The rent of a tenure is always liable to enhancement unless the landlord has precluded himself by contract or is estopped by law and the mere fact that the parties have agreed that resort may be had to the putui regulation to recover arrears of rent cannot mean that the rent was permanently fixed. 23 C W N 945=30 C L J 140=54 I C 850

—S. 18, 11 and 85—The transfers contemplated in Ss. 11 and 18 are transfers out and out and not partial transfers by way of sub lease. S. 85 does not apply to a Subraiayat granting an under-lease. There is no express provision for the grant of sub-leases by tenure holders and under-raiyats, but such sub-leases are recognised by the Act in the definitions of a tenure holder and a "under-raiyat" The T. The interest of the lessee is a voidable and not a void interest. A sub-lease granted by a raiyat does not necessarily terminate on the death of the lessee. rent at the rate of Rs. 66-7-3 and that consequently he was entitled to the benefit of the presumption under s 50.

Held that the answer to this contention is that the Record of Rights has been published duly under Ch. —S. 50—Where the rent receipts stated all items in detail but after some years the details were omitted though the total amount was the same.

Held, it cannot be assumed merely from the from of the receipts that the tenant must necessarily have consented to pay the whole sum as the consolidated rent of her land; and that therefore the tenant is entitled to the presumption under s. 50. 1 Ind Cas 21

S. 50—From the mere fact that a tenancy has been held for about 25 years before the date of transfer at a uniform rate of rent, it cannot be inferred that the rent was fixed in perpetuity.

Though the misconstruction of a document is a ground for second appeal, a second appeal does not lie, because the Judge in the Court of appeal below has misunderstood the effect of documentary evidence.

In order to prove a custom or usage of transferability, it is necessary to prove that transfers have been made to the knowledge and without the consent of the landlord, and that they have been recognised by him without the payment of nazar or upon payment nazar also fixed by contract. It is not necessary to prove that the landlord has actually made an objection to a transfer and has been unsuccessful.

The usage or custom must be obligatory; a usage of transferability, after it has grown up, affects not merely tenancies created thereafter but also existing tenancies. 13 C L J 418=15 C W N 752=10 I C 325.

The Legislature certainly had in view the distinction between an occupancy raiyat and an under-raiyat with a right of occupancy. An examination of S. 113 of the Act is sufficient to show that the Bengal Tenancy Act does recognize this distinction and if it was the intention of the legislature that S. 66 could not apply to an under-raiyat with a right of occupancy there was nothing to prevent it from saying so. 54 C L J 68-A I R 1932 C 6 (8) = 133 I C 689.

—S. 95, as it was under the Act of 1885, did not debar the appointment of a common manager in respect of an estate or share of an estate together with the tenure or tenures subordinate thereto, but in making an appointment in such a case the Judge had to call upon the parties to divide themselves into as many groups as there were properties held by them in common. The amendment of the section in 1928 will make it possible, which it was not possible to do before, to appoint a common manager for only those portions of the estate or tenure, which are affected by the dispute. But even under the law, as it stood before the amendment, it was possible to appoint a common manager not

—S. 167—Annulment of incumbrances is a very severe measure and can be only allowed if proper procedure is followed by the party. An entry in the order sheet that notice is served is not sufficient proof of notice. —S. 167—S. 167 does not apply where the superior landlord is the auction purchaser of the holding, so that notice to eject the sub-tenant is not necessary. 50 I C 37.

—S. 167—"Date of sale" in s. 167 means not the date of confirmation but of actual sale. It is sufficient notice under the sec. if the purchaser had knowledge or intimation of the incumbrance. The lower appeal court rightly held that the purchaser had notice when he had intimation at the time of purchasing an occupancy holding that persons other than judgment-debtor were cultivating the land. 17 C W N 440=16 C L J 131=15 I C 430.

—S. 167—The legal effect of a transaction cannot be always determined with reference to the law at the time of transaction. A rent-decree was obtained before but execution sale took after B T Act came in force. Held that the rights must be determined under B T Act & not under Bengal Rent Act. A Zemindar purchased a tenure but did not annul an under-tenure held that he had no valid title against under-tenure holder. 17 C W N 619=15 I C 479.

—S. 167—A person getting title to a part of sub-tenancy by adverse possession against a sub-tenant, has an interest in the sub-tenancy so that the purchaser of the superior tenancy at a rent-sale seeking to annul the sub-tenancy must give notice under s. 167 to him. 45 C 756=21 C W N 155=23 C L J 485=33 I C 957

—S. 167—Plffs. purchased some patni lands free from encumbrances at a rent sale and issued notices of annulment under S. 167 to defts. which were served like summons on a debt under C P C 1882. Plffs sued for possession. Held that either such a service or by proclamation and beat of drum and by posting them in the presence of at least 2 persons on some conspicuous place would be sufficient. The High Court remanded the case for the darpatnidar being made a party deft. Held that the suit was not bad for non-joinder by originally omitting him to make a party also the order of remand was not bad in law so far as original defts were concerned. 26 M L J 86=18 C W N 259=21 I C 928 (P C)

Within 12 years of the purchase they sued for khas possession of two jamas originally held by R & purchased by deft. 7 years after the darpatni was created. Held plffs. should prove that Zemindar had the possession before the patni & that possession of the putni was not adverse. 20 C W N 1311 (P C) is not contrary to 19 C W N 18. Tenant's possession however long is not adverse to landlord. Whether deft's adverse possession of some lands subsequent to patni constitutes incumbrance held it would be incumbrance only when for statutory period but here deft's adverse possession had not become incumbrance when darpatni came in existence. It was an incumbrance not on the putni but on the darpatni & so no separate notice was necessary. What is to be annulled under s. 167 is only the subtenancy & the purchaser has not to find out the chain of subordinate interests. 25 C W N 106

On Collector's refusal to issue notice under S. 167 he sued for a declaration that he had power to annul the incumbrance and Collector was bound to issue the notice held that the suit was rightly dismissed as no equitable relief could not be granted in such a case. Even assuming that Collector should have issued notices, the Court should consider whether it is equitable to require him to do the specific act, seeing that there by the law prohibiting purchase by judgment-debtor would be defeated. 21 C W N 342=39 I C 189

—S. 167 and Ch. XIV.—The decree-holder continued as sole landlord when applying for execution and took proper steps to sale the under tenure the execution sale passes the under-tenure to the purchaser though decree-holder loses his interest as landlord before actual sale. The legal result of a sale depends upon the due proceedings in execution and not upon the position of the parties at the time of sale, also it would be a manifest abuse of judicial precedents if isolated dicta from P. Act was passed, again in 1910 execution was taken out within 3 years of the previous application, held that art. 6 as amended by S. 61 of the Act of 1907 applied. Proceedings in execution are proceedings in a suit for certain purposes but when there is special law of limitation it must be applied to each successive application and if there is amendment prima facie that will be applicable to subsequent applications. 21 I C 113.

—Art 6—B. T. Act applies to a rent-suit against a co-sharer tenant as it is one between a landlord and tenant. So art. 6 applies to execution of such a decree 50 I C 33.

—Art. 6—To execution of a rent-decree below Rs. 500 got by a co-sharer landlord for his share without making other co-sharers parties, art 6 as amended applies. —Art 6—On 13-2-1907 execution of a rent-decree was applied for but the judgment debtors took time for satisfaction on 6-5-1907. Subsequently they sued for setting aside the decree because of fraud etc. and injunction dated 27-6-1907 was granted to stop execution but attachment subsisted. The injunction ended on 8-5-1908 and the decree holder on 7-10-1909 again applied for attachment and sale of moveables but application was rejected for default and want of further proceedings. On 4-7-1910 third application for the same original lands was made, held that Art 6 did not bar this application as this was in continuation of the first, though second one asked for sale of moveables only. 18 C W N 539=20 I C 244.

—Art. 6—To a decree in a suit between landlord and a tenant to whom and not to which the Act is applicable, art 6, applies, though all the provisions of the act may be inapplicable. A co-sharer landlord obtained decree for his share of the rents, in a suit where it was claimed for several holdings. Execution application was held to be governed by art 6. 11 C L J 81=20 I C 833.

—Art 6—B. T. Act is not confined to agricultural land except the definition of a raiyati. So the law about raiyats must necessarily deal only with agricultural land. An under raiyat is only a tenant holding a raiyat. So if an under tenant is given land for non-agricultural uses that does not remove it from the tenancy Act. An under raiyat is governed by the same law as it is an interest carved out of the raiyati. 21 I C 43.

—Art 6—The appeal court's order directing the respondent to pay partial costs of the appellant which were awarded against the latter in the lower court made in a rent-suit falls within art 6. 9 I C 246.

—Art 6—The article applies to an execution-application of a consent-decree in a rent-suit against a tenant wishing to pay by instalments. So limitation runs not from the last or any other instalment but from the date of the decree. The parties cannot contract themselves, out of the limitation law and extend the time prescribed. 17 C W N 518=18 I C 595.

—Art 6—To execution of a rent-decree got by the landlord after he has ceased to be so, the special limitation for execution under B. T. Act is inapplicable and only the ordinary limitation applies. 34 I C 145.

—Art 6—The period of limitation for execution of a rent decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord is one under art 6 of 3 years and not under C P C of 12 years. 19 C W N 1271=31 I C 700.

—It was provided in a patni lease that the patnidar was not to object to the payment of the stipulated jama if any land be excluded from the patni by any law or order by the Court, held that this provision would not apply to resumption by the Collector under the Chaukidari Act.

BENGAL VILLAGE CHAUKIDARI ACT

A patnidar's cause of action against the Zemindar to recover patni land resumed & settled with the zemindar does not arise from resumption but only when the zemindar disputes his right. If the land is settled with the tenants by the zemindar they do not become ryots against the patnidar. s. 27 Spe Rel Act is inapplicable. 33 I C 593.

—Chaukidari Chakran land to which the Chowkidari Act applies is one assigned by Govt. at the time of settlement though excluded from assessment when the whole estate is assessed. The Act does not apply to Zemindari of killah Sukindah in Orissa which was held in perpetuity at a fixed jama under a Sanad confirmed by S. 33 Reg. XII of 1805 and the resumption and transfer were without jurisdiction. Art. 14 Limi. Act is inapplicable where the order to be set aside is made without jurisdiction. 9 I C 688=15 C W N 300.

—A person not impleaded in the Commissioner's inquiry under Ben. Villa. Chaukidari Act is not entitled to any notice and under S. 61 the report is final and conclusive against him though not against one entitled to notice. 21 C W N 238=32 I C 545.

—Prima facie a Zemindar's title is of full enjoyment and Govt. must prove its power of resumption and assessment. Chakran lands set apart with Govt's permission could only be resumed under S. 8 (4), Reg. I, 1793 and S. 41 Reg. VIII, 1793. Held that Govt. cannot resume some Chakran lands in Orissa on its failure that any piece with the Zamindaries was not assessed for revenue. The Zemindars allotted some lands to Chowkidars for their maintenance of their free will, without there being any obligation for such grant. When some grants were made with Govt. The power conferred on the District Judge is not limited to a re-consideration of any point of law or procedure which may have arisen in the Union Court, but such power is wide enough to permit of a re-consideration of the evidence and accordingly, if he thinks the justice of the case so demands, the District Judge can apparently reverse a decision of the Union Court on a pure question of fact. (1) Meaning of, —A bill of lading is a receipt for goods shipped on board the ship signed by the captain or his representative. A C I F purchaser has a right to ask for the bill of lading and is not bound to pay merely on arrival of the goods at the port. 17 Bom L R 249=28 I C 433

(2) Rights and Liabilities of shipmaster and shipping Co.

—Conditions in the bill of lading—company bound to deliver the exact contents shipped—misdescription of goods—company cannot take advantage of any misdescription. A L R 1933 M 517=A I R 1933 M 7=37 L W 27=63 M L J 736=1932 M W N 1233

Bill of Lading—Cargo mixing up of, by accident—Apportionment between consignees See Port Trust. 11 S L R 29=42 I C 659

—Shipping Co. is bound to deliver the goods to the person who proves himself to be the consignee, though they must be satisfied that the bill of lading is bonafied lost. The Co. may not give delivery to one producing the bill & if after consignee's notice, wrong delivery is given, it must suffer. 7 Bur. L T 92=24 I C 70

—As to whether possession of B of L is equal to possession of goods see. 18 C W N 309

—The date of the bill of lading is a strong prima facie evidence of the date on which the goods were shipped. 42 I C 382

(4) Construction

—Except express contract to the contrary, under general law a carrier by sea must carry the goods under decks & so the clause 'at shipper's risk without option of carrying on deck' clearly favours the ship-owner & is saved from liability for damage due to want of ventilation. 8 Bur L T 273=30 I C 939

—Construction—Clauses not responsible for lack bags and not responsible for counter-marks—Effect. Port Trust. 11 S L R 29=42 I C 659.

(5) Exemption clauses.

—Exception Clause—Restraints of Princes—Meaning of—Reasonable apprehension enough—Actual restraint unnecessary. Contract act; S. 65. 10 S L R 100=37 I C 285.

—A bill of lading provided that the Co's liability absolutely ceased when the goods were free of ship's tackle & then they remained at shipper's or consignee's risk. But before delivery to the consignee, the goods were lost by sinking of boats which were overloaded. Held that debt co. was saved by the cessor of liability clause in the Bill; also that carriers by sea for hire are common carriers & the English Common Law applies to them. The clause in the Bill excluded the liability for unseaworthiness of the boats. Privy council decision is binding upon Indian courts though delivered in an appeal not coming from them Per Sadasiva Iyer J. there is no implied warranty of seaworthiness for the lighters & boats employed by a ship. 38 Mad 941=25 M L J 162=14 M L T 137= (1913) M W N 558=20 I C 546.

year, may yet be shown to be of indefinite origin. A I R 1925 Bom 294-27 Bom L R 267-91 I C 265

—S. 83—Under S. 83—the onus is on the landlord to show the commencement of the tenancy, and on his failure to prove the commencement of the tenancy, a presumption arises, in the absence of any proof of intended duration by agreement or usage, that the tenancy is co-extensive with the duration of the tenure of the landlord or those who derive title under him. Having regard to the fact that S. 83 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code does not exclude watan land from its operation and also to the fact that the onus is on the landlord to show the commencement of the tenancy, we must presume that the tenancy of the several defendants was in existence even prior to 1827. The tenancy of the defendants commenced somewhere between the years 1700 and 1850. That being the case, it must be presumed, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, that the tenancy commenced at a time when the watan lands were alienable under the law prevailing before Regulation XVI of 1827 came into force, and therefore the statutory presumption of permanent tenancy arises under S. 83 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code. 34 B L R 1131 (1134, 1136)—A I R 1932 B 577-140 I C 557-A L R 1932 B 1127

—83—In the case of a tenancy for a fixed period, an agreement to vacate after the expiration of the fixed period is not sufficient to displace the advantage which the tenant has obtained by his long holding, if he continues in possession for many years after he has signed the kabuliyat.

Questions of this class cannot be determined by a clause such as the present, but the matter must be judged in the light of actual facts.

The fact of signing such a kabuliyat in the midst of a long holding at the same rent does not necessarily prevent the tenant from succeeding. The real test in such cases is whether the tenant has continued to occupy the land as before even after the execution of the kabuliyat. 34 B L R 1131 (1133)-A I R 1932 B 577-140 I C 557-A L R 1932 B 1127

—Court will take serious notice of a pleader's conduct if he fails to keep accounts of the client's money. Where accusations against a pleader are of a criminal nature Court will take disciplinary action before he has been convicted of the offence if it is done in his professional capacity or in the presence of Court. Misbehaviour is not limited to professional misconduct but includes general misconduct also. The powers of Judicial Commissioner's Court are very wide. Proceedings under disciplinary jurisdiction are neither Civil nor Criminal but judicial. Form of procedure is not very important so long a fair notice and chance of hearing is present. If in disciplinary proceedings a pleader is illegally put on oath to which he submits without protest, he cannot subsequently urge that the false evidence given under the oath should not be used to judge his professional conduct. (1) Boundary erroneous or uncertain or confused.

—So long as the plaintiff is unable to identify the property from which he desires to eject the defendant he is not entitled to a decree for partition and the Courts have no jurisdiction to grant the plaintiff's prayer in such a case, unless some equity is superinduced by the act of the parties or unless the defendant is shown to be a joint tenant or a tenant-in-common or a co-parcener or an agent, trustee or one occupying a fiduciary position towards the plaintiff in respect to the land. This principle has however; to be applied with reference to the special features of each case. Where in a case of confusion of boundaries it was shown that the defendant obtained possession from the plaintiff's father and that the confusion was caused by the defendant's wrongful act, it was held the inability of the plaintiff to identify the property was no bar to his right to a decree. (1) Adoption.

—Adoption does not require any formality. It requires only course of conduct and publicity of relationship. A I R 1928 P C 197=6 R 520=28 L W 129=48 C L J 177=33 C W N 70=55 M L J 95 (P C)=110 I C 306

Allowing amendment in appeal is a matter of judicious discretion. Plaintiff claiming as Kittima son cannot be allowed to claim as Appathitta by amendment. A I R 1926 Rang 49=3 R 483=92 I C 253.

Act of Shinbuying though prima facie evidence of adoption is not always a clear indication of it. A I R 1923 Rang 189=1 R 102=87 I C 686.

The Kittima and the Apatittha forms of adoption are quite distinct. The former is an adoption with a view to inherit and the latter merely for bringing up the child out of pity. The treatment of a niece like a daughter does not raise any presumption of an adoption with a view to inherit, especially when she is an orphan child. If the parties were strangers the fact would be very important. 10 L B R 376=87 I C 673.

BUDDHIST LAW (BURMESE) (Contd.)

(1) Adoption (Contd.)

—Burmese adoption requires only publicity in testimony of which is the fact of paying the child's school fees before adoption, and his living in the house of the adopter. A I R 1923 P C 156-33 M L T 361-2 Bur L J 260-46 M L J 334-1 R 451 =77 I C 63

Adopted son becoming a monk—Subsequent abandonment of monkhood resumes his old status of adopted son and heir to adoptive parents. 11 L B R 124-66 I C 573

—A Chinese Buddhist can adopt a Burmese girl who will succeed to his properties in the absence of natural children or adopted son. But if she is a stranger, the agnates will exclude her 13 Bur L T L T 132-61 I C 684

—Rule as to laid down in 32 I A 72, 36 I A 192, and 44 I A 25 followed by Chief Court im coming to a conclusion of fact—which on the evidence was held unshakable. A I R 1920 P C 138

—Divorced women can adopt. An adoption is a matter of intenlien and there may be a good adoption without any formal declaration. 11 Bur L T 65-9 L B R 163 =45 I C 737

The object of the adoption is generally to provide the adoptive parents with an heir. The reason for the apadittha adoption is pity for the child. An adoption is not a mere contract nor is it a grant or disposition of property, nor need it be in writing and therefore the fact that a deed of adoption was drawn up does not preclude other evidence of adoption; the question of adoption is a mixed question of fact and law. 1 L B R 273, foll. (1915) II U B R 74-31 I C 94

—Where a claim is based on kittima adoption, it cannot be amended in appeal by advancing an alternative claim based on apadittha. 11 Bur L T 246-41 I C 749

A Kittima child may forfeit his right of inheritance by separating from his adoptive parents. It is however a matter of intention. But where there are no other children with whom the Kittima child seeks to compete or share. The law allows him to inherit in whole or part notwithstanding his separation. 36 I A 192 foll. 45 Cal 1-22 M L T 411-22 C W N 97-27 C L J 68-20 Bom L R 69-(1918) M W N 9 =11 Bur L T 28-44 I A 251-42 I C 863 (P C)

Direct evidence of giving and taking is not necessary to prove an adoption provided there is clear and unambiguous evidence as to the publicity and notoriety of status as a Kittima child. The facts that the adoptive child's name is inserted as joint lender are circumstances showing an intention to adopt with a view to inherit but they are not conclusive. The fact that

(1) Adoption (Concl'd.)

a child was brought up, and treated like a natural child may prove adoption but it does not prove adoption with a view to inherit. 12 Bur L T 236-56 I C 954

An adoption made shortly before the death of the adopter is valid. 32 I C 539

In as much as even children of well-to-do parents often assist in cultivating the family acres, no inference against adoption can be drawn from the fact that an adopted daughter worked in the fields for her adoptive parents. 4 Bur L T 158-11 I C 776

—It is not correct to say that in all cases of Kittima adoption there must be evidence of publicity and notoriety, it is only when the fact of adoption has to be inferred from circumstances that such proof is required. Obtaining an inheritance in the natural parents' estate does not negative the idea of there being an adoption. 9 Bur L T 154-33 I C 927

—Second adoption not prohibited, although the first adopted child is living. 11 I C 776.

—It is impossible for persons not related in any way to adopt mutually. A I R 1929 Rang 173-Ind Rul (1930) Rang 39-120 I C 663.

—A Burmese Buddhist monk cannot adopt. A I R 1929 Rang 173-Ind Rul (1930) Rang 39-120 I C 663.

—The effect of adoption is to disinherit the adoptee. There is no other way except adoption if it is intended to disinherit. A I R 1928 Rang 289-6 R 510-113 I C 804.

(2) Alienation.

—Husband cannot sell the letetpwa property except when he is acting as her agent. What those circumstances may be is a question of proof in each case. When the husband and wife live together and the former, ostensibly with his wife's assent, manages the business of the property on behalf of both, she will doubtless be estopped from subsequently denying that he was authorised to act on her behalf. 6 Bur L T 113-20 I C 341

—Adoptive father having already natural son Plaintiff described as son in adoptive father's will but not given equal share with natural sons and Natural son married to plaintiff's niece which would be impossible if they were brothers—Plaintiff had no status of Keittima son but was merely fondling—Description as son did not prove plaintiff's right to inherit. A I R 1929 Rang 22-6 R 623-Ind Rul (1929) Rang 81-114 I C 513.

BUDDHIST LAW (BURMESE) (Contd.)*(2) Alienation (Concl'd.)

—Sale before attachment valid, if bona-fide and for good consideration—The burden of proving fraud rests on the creditor who impeaches the sale. A sharer has an absolute right to dispose of his own share even while the property is undivided subject to the right of pre-emption by co-heirs. (2 L B R 167 F) 11 Ind Cas 781

(3-4) Ancestral Property.

—Payin property changing its character raises a (rebuttable) presumption that it has become lettetpwa property (2 L B R 174 foll.) 6 Bur L T 174=21 I C 227

—As regards the payin property of the second marriage of a woman the second husband would be entitled to one-fourth of it. Where mortgage and other deeds were executed by husband for illiterate wife of unsound mind and during her insanity the husband took another wife and surrendered all claim to her property. Held it was for the plff. to prove that the husband had any right title or interest in the property. 6 Bur L T 91=20 I C 233

—House built during coverture on the payin property becomes joint property. 12 Bur L T 202=58 I C 275

—Under S. 13 (2) of the Burma Laws Act all questions arising in Civil cases instituted in the Courts of Rangoon were to be dealt with and determined according to the law for the time being in force administered by the Calcutta High Court. Thus a verbal sale for a share in immovable property at Rangoon in 1890 would be invalid. 6 L B R 98=5 Bur L T 169=17 I C 954

—Cosharers having taken part in the partition of the ancestral immovable property cannot pre-empt among themselves. 8 Bur L T 167=8 L B R 466=31 I C 512

—Person paying consideration but purchasing property in wife's or son's name has to show the object with which the property was purchased to enable Court to decide whether transaction was benami or not. A I R 1929 Rang 257=7 R 751=Ind Rul (1930) Rang 177=123 I C 129.

—All payments the obligation for which was undertaken during coverture must be debited to the joint account even though the actual payment was made by the survivor. 12 Bur L T 228=56 I C 972.

—Gift of the separate property, even though the name of the other party was joined as donor, must be made out of the separate property. Property inherited by either of the parties to the marriage is a joint property. 12 Bur L T 228=56 I C 972

BUDDHIST LAW (BURMESE) (Contd.)*(3-4) Ancestral Property. (Concl'd)

—There is no presumption that ancestral property remains undivided till the contrary is proved. Where an intestate's estate is enjoyed by heirs in separate lots for a long period, partition may be presumed. 9 Bur L T 164=33 I C 985

(12) Gift.

Per Mya Bu, J.—What is known as a “deathbed gift” under the Burmese Buddhist Law is a gift made while the donor is in fact on his death-bed and about to die, or, in other words, when his death is imminent. The gift must also be made by the donor in the hopeless expectation of death, or under pressure of the sense of the imminence of death, the underlying idea of the rule that a death-bed gift is invalid under the Burmese Buddhist law being that such a gift, if recognised, would enable a Burman Buddhist to defy his own personal law and practically to dispose of his property by a method which in effect would be equivalent to, and would operate as, a will, (228-9). The mere fact that the donor had been ill for a few months and was weak and infirm and contemplating an early death at the time of the making of the gift is insufficient to bring it within the purview of a death-bed gift under the Burmese Buddhist Law. (230).

BUDDHIST LAW (BURMESE) (Contd.)

Per Page, C. J.—A transfer made by a Burman Buddhist whose death is imminent, and who is under apprehension that his dissolution is at hand, is commonly called a "death-bed" gift. (231). 10 R 224 =139 I C 278-A I R 1932 R 104-I R 1932 R 179-A L R 1932 R 249 —Gift—Death of donor—Gift intended to take effect after—Validity of.

If a Burman Buddhist by a voluntary transfer inter vivos assigns property to a person who is or is deemed to be, a stranger, with the intention that such transfer should become operative after his death, the transfer is null and void. Whether having regard to this rule of law, a transfer is void or not depends upon the facts of the particular case. When such a transfer is made by a Burman Buddhist whose death is imminent, and who is under an apprehension that his dissolution is at hand, it is commonly called a "death-bed" gift, and a presumptio juris et de jure arises that the transferor intended the transfer to become operative after his death. A transfer of this nature is invalid as being a devise by which a Burman Buddhist has attempted to defeat his own personal law, and practically to dispose of his property by a method which would be in all essentials equivalent to a will. (13) Husband and Wife

See also Buddhist Law—Divorce; and Buddhist Law—Marriage supra and infra.

—The husband and wife in a Burmese Buddhist marriage do not hold the property as joint tenants but as tenants-in-common. Thus the idea of an interest in common asserted by the Dhammathats is preserved without the evil consequences following from holding that that is the joint interest of partnership. There is nothing in the texts which would point more to joint ownership than to tenancy-in-common, and therefore it is quite right to prefer the one which leads to the least evil consequences. After all, the ancient law has still a wide scope if admittedly all property acquired by either or both of the spouses before or during marriage passes into the common enjoyment and it is only dealt with by either according to his or her vested interest therein. 59 I A 216=10 R 261 (279-80)=55 C L J 497=137 I C 1=-3 M L J 167=A I R 1932 P C 152 =I R 1932 P C 171 (P. —Per Otter and Das, JJ.—The English law of accretion applies in Burma as a rule of justice, equity and good conscience provided that it is not excluded by the natural features, or by the nature of the tenure. The question must be considered in the light of all the material circumstances of the case, including the nature of the property, its growth and its user and, at the same time, the general conditions appertaining to rivers in Burma must be borne in mind. 10 R 1=137 I C 402=A I R 1932 R 27=I R 1932 R 106=A L R 1932 R 49.

—Unless expressly exempted from liability a carrier is answerable for injury due to negligence in executing the contract. When a passenger upon-specially reduced fare has allowed terms to be made for him by agent, it can be presumed that he was content to accept risks without enquiring into the terms agreed to by the agent. 19 C W N 905 (P C)=31 I C 684.

—In India, a common carrier by sea may contract out the common Law liability for his or his servants' negligence in clear & unambiguous words. 10 L B R 292 (F B)=62 I C 378.

—The plaintiff attempted to board a moving tram-car but failed & slipped & suffered injuries to his toes by the wheels. He sued the defendant tramway Co. for damages alleging that the foot board was not alright. It was held that the plff. was not entitled to damages as he himself was negligent. A passenger should not attempt to enter or leave the car in motion & one who does it, does it at his own risk. A prudent man should not or would not do that, but if he does it & suffers by it, the company is not liable. 13 Bom L R 345 =35 Bom 478-11 I C 362

—Rly. Companies are not insurers of safety of passengers. They are obliged for safety as due care & proper forethought may secure. Burden of explanation is on the Company for an accident which does not happen except through company's default. If this burden is not discharged, proof of accident itself some what evidence's company's negligence. A I R 1919 P C 236

—As the railway company is not bound to reweigh the goods or certify its shortage at the time of delivery, a consignee cannot refuse to take delivery on Co's refusal to reweigh them. 58 I C 200

—It depends upon agreement & usual course of business whether the delivery is to be made at consignee's house or at the journey's end. It is no breach of duty of the carrier if he delivers at the house addressed on the goods & when the carrier has not to deliver at the house, his liability ceases when the goods are brought to its destination & the consignee is made to take delivery within reasonable time. 20 Bom L R 591-44 I C 401

—Some tins of ghee were sent to the plaintiff at Barielly on the deff Railway & the sender signed Risk Note Form A, by which the Co. was not liable for loss arising from the condition of the consignment. The plff found one tin cut open & five other leaking & refused to take them unless they were weighed & a note of shortage made on the receipt. The Co.'s servants refused who afterwards sold them away. In a suit for damages it was held that consignee must be given facilities to weigh the goods on the spot & also Risk Note signed by the consignor does not preclude consignee's right to receive the goods as ordered. 13 A L J 417-29 I C 207

—It is not the duty of a railway company to reweigh the goods or certify its shortage & if the consignee refuses delivery on its refusing to do so, the goods remain at his risk and so he should suffer damages after such refusal. 22 C W N 902 =45 I C 933

—Carriers are not liable for any loss if the consignee, for his convenience or by laches allows them to remain at the destination & ready to be delivered, charging of demurrage does not imply their liability as ware house-owners. 18 A L J 764-58 I C 1000

—Railway-Misdelivery-Delivery without getting back railway receipts—No proof of negligence—fraud of third person—Non-liability, See Railways Act, S. 77. 35 M L J 35-41 M 871-24 M L T 38-49 I C 69

—The Railway Company is liable for damages for breach of general duty if a passenger by its mere invitation or permission suffers injury. But subject to statutory limitations this general duty may be governed by specific contracts, which may enlarge, diminish or exclude it. Such contracts define the duties of the parties & the plff. cannot be allowed to make more out of it than he is entitled. But if the contract deprives a passenger prima facie of his right to benefit from care, the onus is on the Co. to prove that he has assented to it. This the passenger may do either by himself or through his agent, authorised antecedently or by ratification. The intention may be inferred from his conduct. If he leaves the negotiation to his agent & intends that he should make terms on which he is to be conveyed, he cannot afterwards allege want of authority. If the agent does not care to peruse the terms on the back of the ticket, it is not the Co. who should suffer by his neglect. If the Company does nothing misleading the agent as well as the principal are both bound. Otherwise it would be impracticable for Railways companies to arrange for consignors & travellers without in convenience & delay those dealing with them. 19 C W N 905=31 I C 684

(20) Who are carriers

—A carrier is employed to carry goods for others for reward. The Port Trust Board removed consignee's goods from wharf to import yard, & stored no fee was to be charged for this removal. It is not a carrier for this removal, it being a part of landing & deliver. So art. 30 of Limitation Act was inapplicable to a suit for compensation for injury to goods. 10 I C 972=4 S L R 236

—In India a common carrier has two distinct liability, one as an insurer, another as an obligation for safe carrying. If the goods do not come under the Sch. to the Act, the carrier's liability can be limited by a special contract unless the loss occurs from negligence or criminal act seems to be the effect of Ss. 6, 8, & 9 of Carriers Act 1865. It was held that cl. 10 of the agreement did not cover loss through negligence or criminal act. In India there is a statutory prohibition against exempting the carrier from his liability under above circumstances, the English interpretation of law is applicable which is to distinguish between insurance risks & carrying risks which should not be extended to those risks in absence of clear provisions. The late carrying flat was on fire & was scuttled under S. 9. Carriers Act & it was held as there was no contrary evidence the loss was due to the negligence or the criminal act. The clause "warranted no recourse against carriers" was in the policy issued by the plff. Insurance Co. This was not relinquishment by the Co. for not exempted risks. The Insurance Co. cannot sue in their own name as they claimed by way of subrogation & not of assigning, but the Jute Co. was the proper plff. It was for the plff. to prove the amount of damages but for this default it is not proper to dismiss the suit. 15 C W N 226=38 C 28=9 I C 354
